

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS NEED AUGUSTIEN

For the last nine years Mr. George R. Augustien has been President of the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson School District. He is now a candidate for another three year term, and when this message reaches the homes of Daly City the various polling stations of the district will be open for the purpose of choosing a representative for the coming term. Mr. Augustien was first elected in 1923 and in 1926 and 1929 he was returned to office. This fact clearly indicates that his efforts had met with the general approval of the public.

Mr. Augustien has resided in Daly City for eighteen years, and throughout that period has taken an active part in various branches of public work. He has been associated with the Fire Department ever since he came to live here, and has been Fire Commissioner for twelve years. Always a thoughtful man, he was attracted to the subject of education and his election as School Trustee was quite in the natural order of events. He was always recognized as a man of energy and resource, and he has always placed these qualities without reserve at the disposal of the schools of the district. He has been associated with two colleagues whose purpose was in line with his own. This pleasant alliance for the benefit of the schools has achieved excellent results. Although many of those who will vote for Mr. Augustien today are undoubtedly familiar with the history of school progress under the present regime, it might serve a good purpose to touch briefly upon some of the special features connected with the work of the board.

The school district at present employs a special teacher for art and another for music, and also maintains classes in manual training, domestic science and physical education. A trained nurse is employed on full time by the district and sick children are visited in their own homes. The health service department includes yearly inoculations with anti-toxin, vaccination against smallpox, a dental clinic and a surgical clinic for tonsil and adenoid operations. Children who need special care and attention are sent to the Preventorium or to Hill Farm through an arrangement made by this excellent branch of school welfare service.

In 1931 the Jefferson School District closed the year with a balance in the treasury sufficient to meet all necessary expenses, and also to purchase supplies of the opening of school. This fact gives evidence of the economical and efficient stewardship of the present trustees. Some years ago, as many will remember, the district showed a serious deficit. This was the main problem with which Mr. Augustien and his associates had to deal. The financial budget at present stands at $92,824, of which amount $81,000 is required for salaries. As will be seen, there is no great margin left to the trustees for upkeep and improvements, and the excellent record they have made is therefore all the more creditable. It is reported from the office of the State Board of Education that our elementary schools are operated on an exceedingly economical budget, which is at least $42,000 less than the amount required for operating a standard school. The budget cannot be increased at present on account of the limits of taxable property in the district. This fact is mentioned in order that the people may realize at what cost and with what judicious management our trustees are giving us all the advantages we desire for

EASTER SERVICE AT THE DALY CITY M. E. CHURCH

The Easter service at the Daly City M. E. church this year is to be one of especial interest and attraction. The music program is as follows: Prelude, "Lago".....Handel
Offertory, "Reverie".....Engelmann
Postlude, "March Pontificale," Gounod
Eugene Goudy, Pianist and Musical Director.
Tenor Solo, "The Shrine".....Cadman
Tenor Solo, "Consider the Lilies".....R. Topliff
Stanley V. Lewis.
Soprano Solo, "Hosanna".....J. Granier
Mrs. R. J. Bennett.
The Sermon—"To the Immortal Man."
There is a cloud of witnesses who are proclaiming the glad tidings that He is alive for everyone. "And I if I be lifted up will draw all men unto Me." And "Because He lives, we shall live also."
There will also be the reception of new members and the observance of the Sacrament of Baptism. Those who desire to join the church or receive baptism will therefore come prepared in heart and mind.

AMERICAN LEGION NOTES OF INTEREST

There will be no meeting tonight, Friday, March 25, for the members of Daly City Post No. 410, American Legion. Several members of the Post had expressed a desire not to want to break a good habit of attending church services that night, being Good Friday, so like good Legionnaires, all agreed.

But tomorrow night, Saturday, March 26, the Post will have a Leap Year dance at Eagles Hall. Music will be furnished by the Post's haywire orchestra. Refreshments will be served. Bring your friends. A good time is assured all.

Legionnaires, highway safety is a major American Legion activity. Do your part by setting an example.

America First
Adopting the slogan, "What America Makes, Makes America," Post No. 58, at Sonoma, passed a resolution calling on all Legionnaires to demand American made goods, as suggested in the article in the February issue of the Legionnaire.

The Post plans to contact the eleven thousand Posts of the Legion in the interest of the plan and slogan, through the press.

The annual conference of the National rehabilitation committee of the American Legion was held at Washington, D. C., on January 30 and 31 and February 1. Two hundred and fifty officials of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary attended the three-day conference. Practically every state was represented. The American Medical Association and the American Hospital Association, represented by their respective presidents and executive committees, presented a plan for the utilization of 28,333 beds in private hospitals for the care of sick and disabled veterans. It is the opinion of the American Legion that veterans entitled to hospitalization can be best cared for in government hospitals.

Numerous subjects involving treatment and care of disabled ex-service people were discussed at the three-day conference. A separate committee in the Senate, to consider World war veterans' legislation, similar to the committee in the House, has been advocated by the American Legion. Since 1925, the House committee has been over 440 days considering the veterans' legislation, and during this period the finance sub-committee of the Senate has consumed but sixteen days in the discussion of the same problems.

Daly City Post No. 410 will hold their next meeting on Friday evening, April 8, in Eagles Hall.

OLD GLORY POST TO SPONSOR DANCE

Old Glory Post No. 2044, Veterans of Foreign Wars, wishes to announce to the general public that they are giving a benefit dance in the Auditorium of the local City Hall, Saturday evening, April 2; admission 50c per couple, extra lady 25c. Music will be furnished by Del's Accordion Band, famous for their syncopation and for many years the favorite orchestra of regular dance attendants. The chairman of the Dance Committee, Mr. Fred Collins, is very anxious to make this dance a success and has been working very hard towards this end. He is being assisted by a well organized committee of enthusiastic workers, who are engaging every bit of energy to boost the average of the advance ticket sale.

Fred Collins is one of our most popular members, widely known throughout this district for his pleasant manner and trusting nature. Should you be approached by a handsome young fellow, displaying a handful of tickets, you will recognize Fred. If you can resist his pleasant smile and cheery greeting, and refuse to purchase a ticket for the dance, we will admit that you are "shock-proof." Fred Collins is the original "Personality Man," such as are depicted in collar ads and other displays. He has promised to give the public a real good time and guarantees you your money's worth in first class enjoyment and entertainment.

It is expected that the attendance at this dance will exceed all others sponsored by this Post and arrangements are being made for a capacity crowd. All members will be expected to turn out in a body and give their support to this affair. Members will wear their V. F. W. caps.

The Joseph P. McQuaid Auxiliary, No. 1205, of San Francisco, entertained in honor of the department president, Mrs. Henrietta Mills, last Tuesday evening. Among the members of Old Glory Auxiliary No. 2044 who attended were President Ethel Dorn, Nora Clifton, Blanche Allen, Della Campbell, Lillian Ireton, Louise Refatti and Ethel Lewis.

COUNCILMEN BODIEN, SUNDERMANN ARE EXPERTS IN MUNICIPAL WORK

It has always been the policy of the Record to support every movement which promised well for the whole community, and to offer hearty endorsement to those candidates for public office who seemed best qualified for the work. Another municipal election is approaching and great interest is evident throughout the city. The terms of two Councilmen will expire on April 11, and the voters will be asked to make another decision at the polls on that day. Arthur J. Bodien and Henry Sundermann are seeking re-election and we believe a brief review of their record and qualifications will indicate that they should be retained in the service of the city.

Political campaigns are productive of much discussion; many and various are the reasons offered to the public to explain why certain candidates should be elected. There are, however, two considerations which predominate—"What are this candidate's qualifications?" and "Is he prepared to devote them to the service of the city?" Selecting a City Councilman is not a matter of sentiment, but is really a straightforward business proposition. When a shrewd man of business has a vacancy in the ranks of his employees, there is only one standard on which he bases his choice. He will be guided by the efficiency of the candidate.

This is an age of specialists; in every line of endeavor it is the trained man who delivers the goods. Sincerity and enthusiasm are valuable assets, but they require the direction and concentration of the trained mind. It is unwise and perilous to place the responsibility of specialized work upon the shoulders of untried men. This consideration is of special importance in the approaching city election. Arthur J. Bodien and Henry Sundermann are specialists in city government. They have demonstrated their efficiency throughout years of faithful service and are again available for public duty. They have been thoroughly educated in the business of city government and have made a careful study of civic science. They have devoted much thought and attention to community problems and have become expert at dealing with them. Their recognized integrity and proven efficiency combine to make these two candidates ideal city officials.

These men represent two entirely different types and each in his own way has contributed valuable work during his term of office. The present City Council has displayed commendable judgment in the manner in which it has utilized the widely different gifts and personalities of these two Councilmen along certain specialized lines. Mr. Sundermann, for example, has devoted patient thought and careful study to the important question of city finance. The success of that particular committee under his chairmanship has been the subject of favorable comment, not only in local circles, but even at State headquarters. Mr. Bodien, on the other hand, has given particular attention to streets and city planning. The excellent results of the work of the committee which he leads are seen in the general appearance of the city and in the development of our public park.

When two incumbents are seeking re-election, they must be judged by the people on their record. The voters of a compact municipality such as ours usually exercise keen discernment in this particular and, when discussing political matters, their first inquiry is: "What have these men accomplished at the City Hall?" This question can be answered readily. Mr. Bodien and Mr. Sundermann have been members of one of the most successful and progressive city governments of modern times. The development and improvement of the city during the last ten years has been almost phenomenal. With their colleagues in the City Council they have united to put through every measure which meant progress for the city. They did not waste time in arguing over unimportant details, and if any difference in opinion arose, a quick and friendly compromise was arranged. These men realized that they had been appointed guardians of the city's welfare and they conceived it their duty to act in harmony that the people might be served.

The lives of these two citizens have been full and active. They have been able to find time for the promotion of social and fraternal work, and both have taken a prominent part in these activities. Both have taken special interest in the Boy Scout movement and have lent every assistance to that organization since the Daly City branch was established. Their broad sympathy and keen perception of the possibilities in social movements have led them to sponsor every branch of philanthropic work which has come within the range of their opportunities.

We feel that the coming election is an important occasion in the affairs of our city. In previous years the appeal has been made through these columns to keep good government on the job. We sincerely believe that it would be a mistake to interfere with the progress of the city by changing the personnel of the Council. Our present administration is working out a splendid program and each Councilman is taking the part for which he is best suited in the development of the general plan. This is our opportunity to set the seal of approval on the concerted efforts of an administration which points to better things and leads the way. This is the time when the factor of

LOCAL BOY SCOUTS TO PRESENT PLAY

On Friday evening, April 8, in the auditorium of the Jefferson Union high school, the Boy Scouts and Cubs of Daly City will demonstrate to the populace of their city the progress made by the Scout movement in this vicinity during the past year.

With the assistance of the San Francisco Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, Mr. Arthur J. Bodien, chairman of the district committee, and Mr. L. W. Johnston, district commissioner, they will present a very interesting play entitled "Hands Across the Sea." As the showing on April 8 will be the first presentation of this play in the bay district, we have good reason to be proud of the fact that Daly City has been chosen by the San Francisco Area Council for this honor.

Mr. Bodien and Mr. Johnston are quite enthused over the coming rally, and Mr. Bodien when giving a description of the play remarked that it is a magnificent pageant, crammed full of action and containing a large cast of players drafted from the various Scout Troops in the San Francisco Area, who have been thoroughly rehearsed and coached in their parts by well trained leaders.

In addition to this feature, the people of this city will enjoy the privilege of listening to one of the most widely advertised and well conducted bands in California, the 120 piece Boy Scout band from San Francisco. They will support the main attraction with the rendition of popular selections and play the National Anthems of all Nations during the course of the drama. There will be many other attractions featuring local and outside talent composed of members of the Boy Scouts. Mayor H. H. Smith and many other notables will be in attendance on this occasion. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Sunday morning, April 3, the Boy Scouts will sponsor another tree dedication ceremony, and invite all local organizations desiring to participate to join them in this celebration. Sufficient trees to warrant a large ceremony will be supplied through the courtesy of Mrs. Jordan, a member of the American Legion Auxiliary. The trees will be planted at the municipal pumping station, situated at Niantic and Citrus avenues, and will be permitted to remain at this location, where they will receive proper care by the city, until such time as the public park will be ready for their reception.

Organizations wishing to take part in this tree dedication ceremony may do so by making application to either Mr. McHugh, Delaware 7626, or Mr. John Cosbie, Randolph 0669.

As usual the local Boy Scouts have been doing their bit, distributing approximately 1,500 circulars for the San Francisco Work Creating Commission.

K. OF C. OBSERVES 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Daly City Knights of Columbus observed the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the order in an appropriate manner on Sunday, March 20. Annual communion was received at Our Lady of Perpetual Help church, more than sixty members participating.

At a post communion breakfast the following addressed the assemblage: Rev. James Donohoe, Ed Went of the Society St. Vincent De Paul, District Deputy Ed Scott, Past District Deputy Jerry Lalor, Grand Knight of San Mateo Council Joseph O'Malley, Lecturer George Lombard, and the principal speaker, Paul McCarthy, of San Mateo.

Dr. Deering will address the Council at their meeting on Tuesday, April 5, in Eagles Hall. His subject will be of vital importance to all Catholic men. Entertainment and refreshments are to be enjoyed by those in attendance.

COMPANY THREE FIREMEN CELEBRATE BIRTHDAYS

Members of Station No. 3, of the Daly City Volunteer Fire Department held a meeting on Thursday, March 17, when a corned beef and cabbage dinner was enjoyed by the members in celebration of St. Patrick's day, and also the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

Three members of Company No. 3 also celebrated their birthdays at this time. It was an occasion that will long be remembered by those fortunate enough to be present.

fitness for the job should determine the decision of the people. Because we know these men so well and because we realize that they are entirely qualified to continue in our service, we heartily endorse Arthur J. Bodien and Henry Sundermann for Councilmen of Daly City at the election to be held on Monday, April 11th.

ELECT GEHRINGER FOR FIFTH TERM

This is the day when you may record your votes for Adolph Gehringer for Trustee of the Jefferson Union High School District. In accordance with a custom established several years ago, the high school and grammar school elections take place on the same date and at the same polling stations. For ten years Mr. Gehringer has served on the High School Board. He has been elected four times, twice without opposition—in 1926 and 1929—and is now a candidate for a fifth term in office.

When the Jefferson Union high School District was formed early in 1922, great care was exercised in the choice of candidates. At that time there was no high school building in the district and it was necessary to accommodate the students in temporary class-rooms. The first important task of the new board was the business of building a school, and it was felt that at least one of the trustees should be a builder of experience and ability. At this time Mr. Gehringer had lived in Daly City for fifteen years and throughout that period had been engaged in building construction. He was one of those quiet men who inspire confidence—a man of few words, but with a great reserve of strength. He was known to be sincere, thorough and capable. It was the general opinion that he would be a most valuable man to serve on the new board in the capacity of building inspector.

During the construction of the new high school buildings, and in the necessary review of the plans, the knowledge and experience of Mr. Gehringer were in constant demand. This was a big undertaking which called for the services of an expert. The voters of the high school district have never had occasion to regret their selection of a practical builder for the position of Trustee.

His record has been discussed in these columns, and one special feature of the work of the board has received particular mention. It may be referred to again on this occasion, since this is a season when economy is a magic word. The watchful care of the present Board of Trustees in the matter of expense has given great satisfaction to the taxpayers. Efficiency in teacher service has been maintained at low proportionate teacher cost. Mr. Gehringer and his colleagues have kept themselves in tune with the spirit of the people while exerting every effort to maintain the highest standard and provide adequate equipment.

The present High School Board is well balanced. Another experienced builder was added to the ranks with the election of Truman Bentley in 1924, and he and Mr. Gehringer have combined their valuable knowledge and wide experience for the good of the school. Mrs. Stella L. Jensen and Mr. Andrew Vireno, located in two geographical extremes of the district, bring to the board a pleasing record of fine service in community work. Mrs. Lilah Brown completes the quintet of trustees with her excellent training in social and benevolent activities. When we survey the minutes of a governing body like this, we are moved to regret that it is necessary periodically for such conscientious and diligent public servants to appeal to popular vote for authority to continue their good work. It would be unfortunate indeed to disturb this circle of usefulness by any change. There is a persistent feeling throughout the district that

EASTER SERVICES IN GRACE CHURCH

The Presbyterian church will hold special Easter services Sunday. In the morning at 10 o'clock the Sunday school will conduct an attractive service with the members of the Sunday school taking charge of the program. The parents are especially invited to attend. At 11 A. M., the hour of worship, Rev. John R. Stevenson will preach. His sermon will be, "What the Resurrection Can Do for You." Special music under the direction of Mr. Henry Hamilton will be a special feature of the service and a girls' choir under the direction of Miss Mildred Swan will also sing some special selections. In the evening a special song service of thanksgiving at 7:45. The public is cordially invited to attend.

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS NEED AUGUSTIEN

our children. The school curriculum is thorough and comprehensive, and we have good reason to be proud of men who are able to accomplish so much in spite of the handicap referred to above.

For the important position which is to be filled at the polls today we need men like George R. Augustien. The welfare of our children is a consideration of first importance. Their future partly depends on the manner in which they are dealt with in their school days. Mr. Augustien is a man with children of his own, and has had excellent opportunity for child study in his own domestic circle. The regularity and reliability of his habits and character, his invariable geniality and wide experience combine to make him a most desirable representative on the Board of Trustees. It may be repeated, that the work of School Trustee is without remuneration and much time and labor are willingly donated to the cause of the children by the three men who have done so much to improve school conditions in our district.

We are entirely satisfied with the work which Mr. Augustien has done during his three terms as School Trustee, and sincerely trust that he will be given a record vote for re-election today by the parents to whom he has dedicated his services so zealously and unselfishly.

The polling places will be at the Crocker Tract school, Vista Grande school and Jefferson Hall school. Polls open at 6 A. M. and close at 7 P. M.

It looks as if what Japan needs is a good public relations counsel.

we cannot improve on the excellent incumbent—Adolph Gehringer.

He is not seeking to be re-elected as a reward; he is not asking praise or thanks. He respectfully requests the renewal of opportunity to serve the great cause of higher education. His own two children have been students at the school which holds first place in his interest. The advantages and opportunities which he desired for them he is anxious to offer to all students who enter the classrooms of Jefferson High.

It is not at all difficult to speak with enthusiasm of such a candidate. He has been known among us for years for his unchanging sincerity and devotion to high principles. In the white light of publicity he has stood the test and there have been very few criticisms of the straight course which he has always pursued. He has never been what men call a politician. There is a directness about his very manner of living that appeals to the ordinary man. It is not difficult to understand him, and he gives the impression that he is a man who can be depended upon to weigh every action and to do the right thing, without fear, without hesitation and without expectation of reward. We believe that public opinion will give hearty expression of its appreciation of the services of Mr. Gehringer as the votes are recorded today. We earnestly trust that he will be returned to office for another three year term.

The polling places will be at the Crocker Tract school, Vista Grande school and Jefferson Hall school.

Last Friday evening Miss Collista Dalton was tendered a surprise silverware shower by members of La Fiesta Club at the home of Mrs. Annette Drury. The dining room was artistically decorated for the occasion, the table favors being in keeping with the Easter spirit. In the center of the table was a huge pink and green basket with streamers of ribbon running to each place card from basket. After a dainty supper was enjoyed the top of the basket was removed and each guest received a gift, as a token from the hostess, Mrs. Drury. Those attending were Mesdames Christine Hume, Lorraine Wall, Bernice McGourk, Sylvia Fischer, and Margaret Kennedy; Misses Marge O'Connor, Collista Dalton, Edna Boyle, Tessie O'Connor, Louise Clemens, Nonie Healey, Elsie Fahey, Laverne and Lucille McGuirk and Mrs. Drury.

Five L. D. S. Relief Societies of the West Bay District assembled at Golden Gate Park at Twenty-First avenue and Lincoln way last Thursday in commemoration of the nineteenth anniversary of the organization. Approximately one hundred ladies attended. A very delicious picnic lunch was served, after which outdoor games were enjoyed until 2 P. M., when the chairman, President Eva Merrill, of the Mission organization, called the meeting to order and a very splendid program was rendered. The ladies then assembled in five groups and planted three trees, fifteen in all, each lady present putting a shovel of dirt until all was finished. Bishop Claude C. Naulder, of San Francisco Ward, then gave a dedicatory address and prayer. This day will long be remembered by those who attended as an outstanding activity of the oldest existing woman's charity organization.

On Tuesday, March 15, members of the Firemen's Association of San Mateo county were guests of the Homestead Bakery, in San Francisco. They were escorted through the building by guides, who explained how the bread and cakes were baked, starting from the flour to the finished product, which proved very interesting to all, after which the visitors partook of coffee and cake. Later dancing was enjoyed by the delegation.

OVERDOING A GOOD THING

A good many state legislative officers seem to look on the gasoline tax as a godsend when it comes to raising revenue for any or all purposes. The decline in revenue from other kinds of taxes has intensified this trend. Now it is advocated that gas taxes be used for unemployment relief, poor relief, general state purposes, and so on. All of these purposes are no doubt laudable, and some are necessary—but it is difficult to understand why the bill should be passed on to the motorist.

A reasonable gas tax—with stress on the word "reasonable"—all of whose receipts are used for road work, is sound and it is accepted as essential by the majority of motorists. But when the gas tax goes beyond certain levels, or when the revenue derived is applied in other directions, it becomes class taxation of the most onerous kind. Taxes of five and six and seven cents a gallon are becoming alarmingly prevalent.

The upshot of the matter will probably be a "motorists' revolt." The public must make itself felt, in no uncertain way, if it is to keep the marauding hands of the gas-taxers out of its pocketbook.

P. T. A. PROVIDES LUNCH FOR LOCAL SCHOOL CHILDREN

The lunch project at the General Pershing school is progressing beyond expectations. During the time that the cafeteria has been in operation, 680 free lunches have been served to needy children of the community. The mothers of the General Pershing unit have been very generous in giving their time in the cooking and serving of the meals. This project is run without profit. Home cooked meals are served for the very small sum of 10 cents. The members of the unit earnestly solicit the co-operation of the mothers who have children attending the school. Give the children lunch money, and don't worry about them until dinner time again. Mothers are invited to inspect the lunch room and help the women who so willingly give their time to keep the project running.

APPRECIATES ACTION FOR PROTECTION OF CHILDREN

I wish to commend Chief of Police Doyle and the Police Commission of Daly City for the action taken in placing an officer at the Vista Grande school during school traffic hours. Safety being one of the departments of Public Welfare, of which I am a director of the Seventeenth District, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, this will be reported as one achievement of great importance in public welfare, and I do believe that every resident of Daly City will fully appreciate its value in preventing accidents.

LILLIAN G. LANDINI,
Director of Public Welfare, Seventeenth District, California Congress of Parents and Teachers.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS HAVE AN ENJOYABLE SOCIAL

The members of the Royal Neighbors, Vista Grande Camp, held their monthly social at the home of Mrs. S. A. Landini, of Winchester street, last Tuesday evening. Following an interesting game of whist, dainty refreshments were served, the tables being beautifully decorated with Easter favors.

The following were present: Mesdames Wilma Plumber, Mary Houston, Lucy Nelson, Lillian White, Emelie Twisten, Mary Friman, Mary Rucker, Anna Romer, Adele Dennis, Rose Schuler, Juanita Jorgensen, Anna Smith, Louise Cook, Bessie Merritt, Agnes Woods, Clarice Scott, Ivy Parke, Kathleen Brown, Maude Appleton, Johanna Hedvall, Helena Hammond, Doris Burdick, Margaret Orr, Gertrude Gehringer, Mattie Smith, Lillian Landini, and Gale Pheasanton.

EASTER SERVICES TO BE HELD ON MT. DAVIDSON

New trails have been cut up the slopes of Mt. Davidson and the crest cleared of all brush, in anticipation of a throng of 40,000 persons at the tenth annual Mt. Davidson Easter sunrise service next Sunday morning. There will be parking facilities in the vicinity of the mountain for approximately 10,000 automobiles.

Sunrise is officially set for 6:03 A. M., and the service will begin at this moment. Previous to this time the early arrivals will be entertained by selections by the San Francisco Municipal Band under the direction of Phil Sapiro. Then will follow a trumpet call, officially opening the service.

CO-OPERATION DOES PAY

About twelve million dollars in new bonds have been issued to real estate investors, mostly small owners, throughout the United States in exchange for defaulted ones since a now nationally famous Chicago plan to protect the investments was put into operation a little more than a year ago, according to a leading financial authority.

Five billion dollars in bonds have defaulted in this country since 1929, it is estimated. Of this amount, it is declared four billion dollars was in real estate bonds, more than one-fifth of all real estate bonds outstanding.

It is difficult to picture these immense sums, but it is easy to realize that widespread suffering has followed the collapse of the real estate investment boom of two or three years ago.

Financial and investment leaders in Chicago worked out a method for handling bonds totaling $14,623,000, in the hands of more than 8,000 customers all over the country, organized the George M. Forman Realty Trust and prevented foreclosures and receiverships, of which there have been thousands elsewhere, with great loss to little investors.

Instead of loss, the Trust bondholders look forward to the return of most, if not all, of their investment. They are participating in the largest movement ever organized for the protection first of real estate bondholders.

Co-operation made this possible. The investors saw the wisdom of working together and they are making money by their decision.

LADIES HOME CLUB ENJOYS SOCIAL DAY

The Ladies Home Club, with a record breaking attendance, met at the Club House on Tuesday, and after an enjoyable few hours, refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

After a short business session, at which the president, Mrs. Lillian Landini, presided, the members voted to continue the philanthropy work so well started, and made necessary provision to continue the sewing after the next business meeting, which will be held at the club house on Tuesday, April 12, at 2 o'clock.

The members of the Nominating Committee for this year are Mrs. Stella Jensen, Mrs. Camille Benassini, Mrs. Catherine Wight, Mrs. Lizzie Atkinson, Mrs. Julia Sturla, and they are requested to be present to make their report at that meeting. Mrs. Margaret Elmers and Mrs. Margaret Yates have recently been received as members.

AN INTERESTING PROGRAM

Last Friday Mrs. L. Landini, fourth vice-president of the Seventeenth District Congress of Parents and Teachers, was in charge of the program for the regular district meeting. Mrs. Landini was assisted by members of the Crocker, General Pershing, Jefferson High School and Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande Units. Mrs. Edith Hassett, principal of the General Pershing school, gave a short discourse on recreation and playground apparatus. Billy Fuhr, a student from the Howard Avenue school, gave a short reading. This young man is Mrs. Landini's grandson. A group of children from the Woodrow Wilson and Vista Grande schools put on a citizenship drill. Mrs. Foreman escorted the following children, who had a part in the drill: Marion Miller, Betty Talmadge, Caroline Woodside, Gladys Brown, Violet Prizborski, Barbara Gaslander, Virginia and Guenivere Callen, John and Barbara Foreman, Virginia and Betty Louise Orr, Hazel and Ethel Hill.

There were also a number of other interesting addresses presented during the afternoon. Mrs. Landini received many compliments on her fine program.

LOCAL CHAPTER ENTERTAINS DEPUTY GRAND MATRON

On Monday evening, at Crocker Masonic Temple, Crocker Chapter No. 382, O. E. S., was honored by a visit from the Worthy Deputy Grand Matron. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, refreshments were served in the beautifully decorated banquet hall by a committee of which Margaret Elmers was chairman.

The Worthy Matron, Anna Neff, and Worthy Patron, Edward Weisenburger, are planning a kiddies' Easter party, which is joyously looked forward to by the children of the members. The event will take place on Monday, April 4, at Crocker Masonic Temple, at 8 o'clock.

The members of the Sewing Circle were guests of Stella Jensen at her home in Lawndale last Thursday. Edith Ferguson assisted the hostess and a delightful day was enjoyed by all.

The sewing group, of which Helen Cohn is president, have invited their many friends to a whist party to be held this Thursday, at the Crocker Masonic Hall, at 2 o'clock. All are welcome.

EL CARMELO PARLOR MEMBERS VISIT BOYS IN BASE HOSPITAL

The members of the Veterans' welfare committee of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, paid their customary pre-Easter visit to the "boys" of Ward 11 at the Base hospital in Palo Alto. Fifty pounds of home made cookies, six pounds of candy, eight cartons of cigarettes, one box each of apples and oranges and several copies of current magazines, all donated by members of the Parlor, were brought to the eighty-three patients in the ward.

The following members and friends made the trip to Palo Alto: Misses Louise Clemens, Elsie Behringer, Ethel Anderson, Eleanor Boyle, Anita Bemis, Mesdames Rena Mathies, Evelyn Bemis, Julia Romer, Rose Mohr, Alice Anderson, of El Carmelo Parlor, and Misses Lucille Young and Dorothy Moss; Brothers Ed Eliason, Ted Clemens, and Leonard Koke, of El Carmelo No. 256, Native Sons of the Golden West, and Messrs. Jack Oldham and Ernest Romer.

TANFORAN RACES BEGIN THURSDAY

Racing at Tanforan will begin on Thursday, March 31, to continue each week day until Saturday, May 14. The period of the great sport of the thoroughbred will be the fifth conducted at the San Bruno course by the Pacific Coast Breeders Association. As at the other meets, the fleetest horses in training will compete in the features and over-night events.

Announcement of the racing was made sufficiently early to give fans in every part of the country time to plan to come to San Francisco to enjoy the carefully arranged programs. Efforts of the management to make Tanforan a "port of call" for tourists are meeting with the hearty co-operation of civic organizations, which recognize the strong hold of the game.

On the first day and right through the season handicaps and other top-line tussles promise the best of sport. About three hundred and fifty runners are at the track, and the number will be doubled next week by shipments from Agua Caliente and thoroughbred nurseries of the West.

Late closing of stakes will undoubtedly draw large fields for the features. A counting of noses at this time indicates a band of thoroughbreds never surpassed in the long history of the turf will go to the post in the race named for the chief executive of the state.

Along toward the close of the meet will come the renewal of the Governor Rolph Handicap. A counting of noses at this time indicates a band of thoroughbreds never surpassed in the long history of the turf will go to the post in the race named for the chief executive of the state.

All the stakes are as follows:
Saturday, April 9, Tanforan Spring Special Handicap, one mile and a sixteenth, not less than $2,500 added.
Saturday, April 16, Bay Area Handicap, one mile and seventy yards, not less than $2,000 added.
Saturday, April 23, Oakland Handicap, one mile and an eighth, not less than $2,000 added.
Saturday, April 30, Derby Candidates Handicap, one mile and an eighth, not less than $2,000 added.
Saturday, May 7, Governor Rolph Handicap, one mile and an eighth, not less than $5,000 added.
Saturday, April 4, Au Revoir Handicap, one mile and a sixteenth, not less than $2,000 added.

Automatic HOT water

safer for children

Easiest terms ever—as low as $4.85 down and $3.85 a month

Let the children wash themselves. They like to—especially when there is plenty of hot water at the turn of a faucet. Then, too, Automatic Hot Water is safer.

You can buy an Automatic Gas Water Heater for 50% less than you could in 1917. Yet the new, improved automatics are colorful and better built. And the terms? They are as low as $4.85 down and $3.85 a month, with a liberal trade-in allowance for your old non-automatic water heater or water-back. Never before have such easy terms been offered on Automatic Gas Water Heaters of this quality.

Besides, an Automatic is economical. It heats water for the lowest cost per gallon of any method of heating water in the home. Moreover, Natural Gas has cut the operating cost about 40%.

AUTOMATIC Gas Water Heater costs 50% less than in 1917.... Costs 40% less to operate because of Natural Gas

Put yourself down for an Automatic and have hot water any time of the day or night. Just turn the faucet for a tubful for bathing or a basinful for shaving.

Plenty of Automatic Hot Water dissolves dirt from 2 to 20 times faster. That saves your energy with the clothes and dishes. It also saves time. Studies have been made which show instant hot water saves from 4 to 6 hours each week.

Architects and builders are specifying Automatics for all modern homes. The smallest home can now enjoy the same excellent hot water service found in fine hotels and apartments.

When you select an Automatic Gas Water Heater, you are not buying a luxury but making an investment in one of the most important necessities for healthful, happy home life.

*According to our gas rates, Automatic Water Heating with Natural Gas saves the average consumer 40%.

The State Division of Architecture awarded contracts recently totaling $53,758 for the national guard armory at Salinas.

Rev. James J. Lyons, S. J., stepped from the rank of professor recently to become president of the University of Santa Clara, succeeding Rev. Cornelius J. McCoy, S. J., who directed the university for the past six years.

Copper stills seized in Northern California prohibition raids will protect Army ammunition dumps in the Philippines, officials revealed. Copper reflects heat, and the cooler ammunition caches are kept the better. The copper stills are being beaten into roofing, of which two tons, all gathered in raids the past few months, will be carried across the Pacific on the transport Ludington sailing on the 21st inst.

The Fresno County Farm Bureau has asked the Federal and State departments of agriculture, the Federal Farm Board and the University of California for a comprehensive survey of the raisin industry. The survey was proposed in conjunction with arrangements already made for surveys and other assistance for California agriculture by Federal and State agencies.

Unsatisfactory condition in many California jails are reported to Gov. Rolph by Mrs. Rheba Crawford Splivalo, director of the Department of Social Welfare, in a statement on file with the executive. Pending completion of the State-wide survey, Mrs. Splivalo withheld specific comments, but said that the department hopes to be able to present complete reports on all jails by the end of June.

The people of California are spending in drug stores $3.49 out of every $100 expended for retail purchases, according to a survey released by Edwin Bates, special agent of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in San Francisco. Speaking nationally, the report says: "While the druggists are drawing $3.49 out of every retail $100, gasoline filling stations are attracting $3.77, retail furniture stores, $3.04; variety stores, $1.74; hardware stores, $1.72, and jewelry stores, $1.08."

An extension of the United States Society, an organization for the promotion of a better understanding on the part of both students and adult groups of the problems of good government, was being planned for California, it was announced. Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan, head of the California Institute of Technology, will direct the work of the organization for southern California. The northern California division of the society will be represented by Almon Edward Roth.

J. R. Hyans, senior agricultural inspector for the district extending from Norwalk to Long Beach, was busy recently, inspecting a carload of plants sent to the Norwalk State Hospital from Sacramento. The shipment consisted of 500 ornamental shrubs to be used in landscaping the grounds of the new buildings, either recently completed or in course of construction. Some of the shrubs are fifteen to twenty-five feet high.

Southern California junior prison sites in the vicinity of Simi, were inspected recently by members of the State commission named to pick a location for the $1,000,000 penal institution for first offenders between 18 and 24 years of age, which it is proposed to erect within 110 miles of Los Angeles. Minimum requirements, as adopted December 3, provide that the site must have a minimum of 480 acres, be within 110 miles of Los Angeles City Hall, outside the corporate limits of any incorporated town or city, have proper transportation facilities, not less than 200 inches of water appurtenant thereto and have an elevation of not more than 3000 feet above sea level.

California motor vehicle accidents cost 7,219 lives and resulted in 124,757 injuries during the last three years, the State Highway Patrol announced. For that period there were 92,953 traffic accidents involving death or injury—26,921 in 1929, 31,019 in 1930 and 35,013 in 1931. Last year alone there were 2,591 deaths, or an average of 215.9 a month, a substantial gain over the two previous years. Analyzing the 35,013 major accidents of 1931, E. Raymond Cato, Highway Patrol chief, said that 27,183 occurred inside incorporated cities and 7,830 on roads in rural sections. But he pointed out as "a very significant fact" that only 4 per cent of the city accidents were fatal whereas 14.6 per cent of those on rural highways resulted in death. The report asserted that 52 per cent of all 1931 California motor vehicle accidents took place in Los Angeles county.

The Society of California Pioneers of San Francisco is conducting a drive for $500 as its part of the purchase price of the General Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo home at Sonoma to be used as a state park.

California's bird life is practically the same now as it was 100,000 years or more ago, according to Alden H. Miller, zoology instructor at the University of California. Of twenty-three kinds of birds identified by bones excavated from tar pits at Carpinteria, near Santa Barbara.

The ice cone at the base of Upper Yosemite Falls, formed during the winter by falling particles of ice, was measured recently, by park service engineers and found to contain 8,820,000 cubic feet of ice weighing 200,000 tons.

Amendment of the articles of incorporation of the California Peach and Fig Association to permit the purchase of commodities from growers other than members has been agreed upon by directors and a committee of growers. The amount purchased would not exceed the value of crops delivered by members.

"California will be appropriately represented at the Chicago World Exposition in June, 1933," Adolfo Camarillo, one of the five commissioners appointed by Governor James Rolph, Jr., to represent the state at the "big show" in Chicago, so announced recently. Camarillo, who owns a 12,000 acre ranch near Oxnard, was in San Francisco to consult with experts concerning the type of building to be erected at the Chicago exposition as California's share of the international "show." "The last Legislature appropriated $100,000 for a California building at the Chicago exposition," Camarillo said, "and it probably will appropriate more at the next session."

Of the larger American cities, San Francisco was second healthiest for babies in 1930. Its rate of forty deaths per 1,000 births was exceeded only by Seattle, which had a rate of thirty-seven, according to figures released recently, by the American Child Health Association. The report showed the national rate was 62.2, the lowest ever recorded. Associated Press dispatches stated. Cities of from 10,000 to 100,000 population were declared the healthiest. Alameda led the 20,000-50,000 class with a rate of twenty-one, while Long Beach led cities in the 100,000-200,000 class with forty-three, it was stated. Of the larger cities, Portland, Oregon, followed San Francisco with forty-one.

Bean acreage should be curtailed this year according to an announcement by Dudley Moulton, Director of Agriculture. The following furnished by the crop reporting service should be read by every man intending to plant beans: California has produced three good crops of beans in the past three years. In 1929 the production amounted to 3,391,000 bags, which were moved at fairly good prices, with only 90,000 bags remaining in warehouses on September 1, 1930. The 1930 crop amounted to 4,264,000 bags. Considering the large crop the movement was fairly good and stocks in warehouses on September 1, 1931 amounted to 689,000 bags. Prices slumped, however, and the 1931 crop of about 3,467,000 bags has moved slowly, at greatly reduced prices.

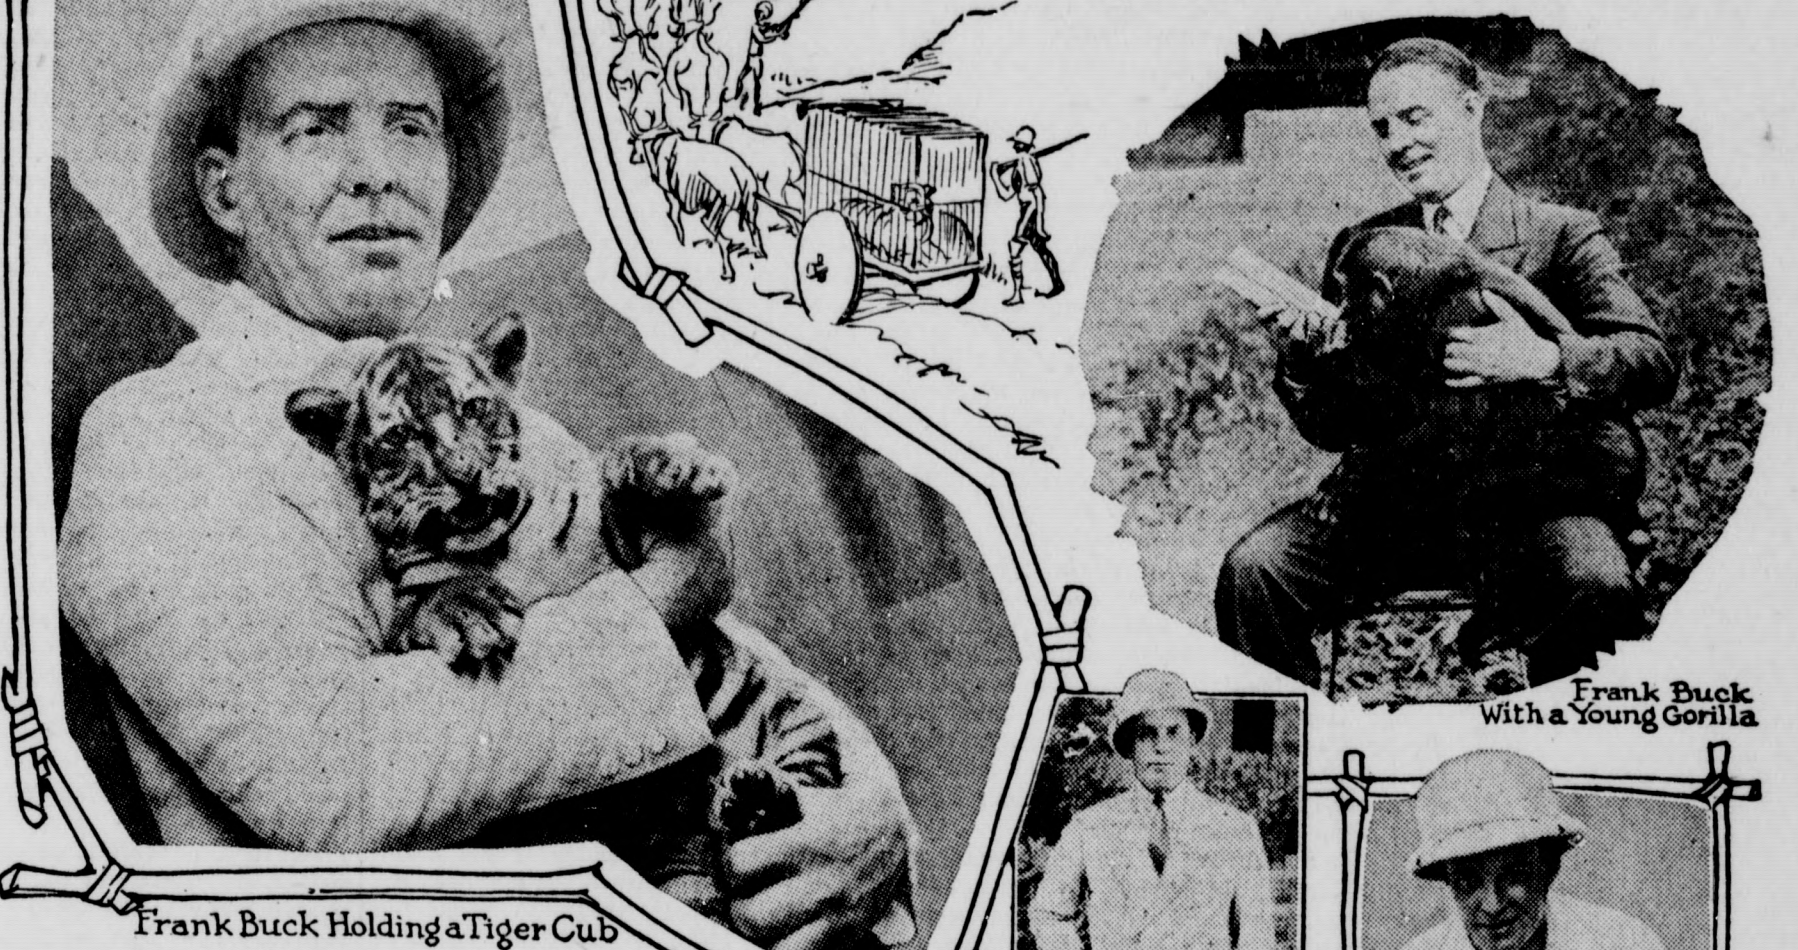

California workers' incomes increased during February by a slight fraction, figures gathered by State officials from 1200 producing plants indicated. The gain in aggregate purchasing power, though slight, was cheering news to merchandisers. The reporting establishments had 124,416 persons on the employment rolls—said by the State authorities to be more than 60 per cent of the wage earners of the State. This figure was two-tenths of 1 per cent smaller than January, but the average weekly earnings increased sixteenth of 1 per cent, more than balancing the account. The State's average pay to the industrial worker was $25.05 weekly. Though above January, this was 16.5 per cent under February of last year. The number employed was 18.6 per cent under last year, and the total income of all employees was down 32.1 per cent from a year ago. The data were contained in the March issue of the California Labor Market Bulletin, issued by T. A. Reardon, State Labor Commissioner. Total wages paid by the 1200 concerns for the month, the bulletin showed, amounted to $3,116,799. The same concerns paid $4,587,759 in February, 1931.

California big game hunters want the State Fish and Game Commission to open the season on mountain sheep for brief periods annually. There has been no open season on mountain sheep in California since 1883. It is estimated by officials of the commission that there are more than 3000 mountain sheep in California. About 55 per cent of them are in Inyo county. Scattered locally, the high Sierra sheep range from Convict lakes mountains, Mono county, to Northeastern Kern county. San Bernardino county is credited in the mountains to the north and east of having the second largest number of mountain sheep in the State. Some sheep are found in the San Jacinto mountains west of Palm Springs. Many are also found in the mountains about Death Valley. Sportsmen who desire to have the season opened and special licenses at a high figure issued by the State for the privilege of shooting a single specimen of the big sheep point out that this would give added revenue to the Fish and Game Commission for further patrol protection to the sheep against poachers and the golden eagle. The golden eagle, also protected from the huntsman, is the worst enemy of the sheep.

R. E. Warkentin, who has a mining claim near Minersville, Trinity County, is debating whether to give up his mine or his pet deer. As fast as Warkentin posts the location notices, required by law, the deer eats them. The deer will spurn alfalfa, wheat or meal to browse on the cloth location notices.

The 1932 biennial summer session of the Institute of International Relations will be held on the campus of the University of Southern California, Dr. R. B. von Klein Smid, chancellor, announced recently.

The Man Who "Brings 'Em Back Alive"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

A few years ago, a certain mother down in Texas had been more successful in performing the ceremony of "laying on of hands"—a ceremony familiar to innumerable mothers of innumerable active, venturesome little boys—than thousands of visitors to certain zoological parks in various parts of the United States would never have had the thrill of looking upon the only authentic man-eating tiger ever brought to this country, the biggest king cobra ever captured alive, two of the exceedingly rare Indian rhinoceroses and the tiniest baby elephant (just two feet and ten inches at the shoulder) ever brought across the seas.

But lest that statement appear to be too paradoxical let it be explained at once that she was the mother of Frank H. Buck, who as a collector of live animals, reptiles and birds, is without a peer in the world today. She had discovered her young son busily engaged in the capture of a big, angry, buzzing rattlesnake near the Buck home on the outskirts of Dallas, Texas, and the "laying on of hands" ceremony was observed forthwith to convince him that there were less dangerous ways for a lad of his years to earn money. (He was collecting rattlesnakes because an old doctor in Minneapolis, Minn., who manufactured a "magic snake oil," was in the market for the reptiles.)

Frank Buck will tell you that the ceremony was performed in a most thoroughgoing fashion. But it failed of its purpose. For from his earliest childhood wild animals and birds fascinated him and the desire to possess them was his mastering passion. So the mother who tried to shape the destiny of the foremost exponent of the art of "bringing 'em back alive" was due to be foiled from the beginning.

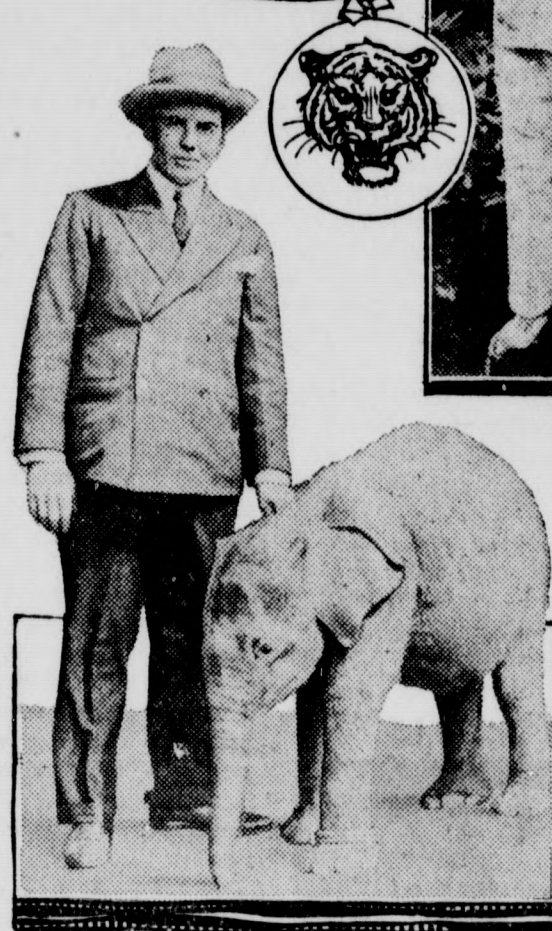

When the Buck family moved to Chicago, the boy, no longer able to capture small wild animals and birds as he had done on his native soil, haunted the Lincoln Park zoo and the pet stores in the big city, feasting his eyes on strange new animals and birds from far-off corners of the earth. What money he was able to save he invested in owning some of these birds—paying for one pair, incidentally, a price ten times as great as he himself could charge when years later he became a collector.

When he grew older Frank Buck's hobby took him to South America in search of rare birds. This was followed by a second trip to the southern continent and when he sold his collection of live birds he found the deal so profitable that he resolved to go in for wholesale bird and animal collecting. And that was the beginning of a unique career.

Today Frank Buck can go into almost any zoo in the United States or walk through the menagerie tent of any circus and, looking through the bars of the cages, greet the inhabitant thereof as an old friend. For it was he who brought that inhabitant from his native haunts to this place so that the thousands of Americans who have before only heard of the existence of some strange animal can see the animal in the flesh.

Obviously a man with such a record has had more than his share of thrills and narrow escapes from death. Obviously, too, an account of them could not be told within the space of this article any more than a full account of them could be told in the book "Bring 'Em Back Alive," written by Frank Buck with Edward Anthony and published by Simon and Schuster. But there was space in that book to tell of the time Frank Buck found himself sliding into a pit with a man-eating tiger which he and his helpers were trying to get out of the pit into a cage; of the time one of his leopards escaped aboard ship and how he went into a cabin where the leopard was at bay and roped him; and of the time when a king cobra escaped from its cage and cornered him in a hut in his compound at Singapore.

Those are only three of the times when Frank Buck stared death straight in the eyes. There were many others. Perhaps the strangest of all of them was the time a tapir, ordinarily the meekest of all animals, tried to crush him to death with its six hundred pounds of weight and all but succeeded. Then there was the time when an orang-utan, the giant jungle-man of Malaya, was just ready to draw him into a death embrace with his powerful arms and then tear him to pieces with his teeth. There was just one chance to escape alive and Frank Buck took it. He's not a professional boxer, but when the orang came at him with outspread arms, Buck simply walked in and gave the jungle-man an uppercut on the point of the jaw that was as an effective k. o. as was ever demonstrated in the prize ring.

Frank Buck and "Baby Boo"

"Yes, I have had more than my share of thrills," Frank Buck will tell you. "But I am frank to say that these close calls do not represent a love of looking death in the eye. I am not that kind of adventurer. I take no unnecessary risks. When a man operates on as big a scale as I do he doesn't have to look for trouble. No matter how careful one is, something is bound to go wrong when live animals and reptiles are handled wholesale. It is then that experience counts."

And he might add that experience counts in other times than when something goes wrong and an adventurer such as he is looks death in the eye. A big game hunter has to think of saving only one life—his own. But a man who collects wild animals, as Frank Buck does, has to think of saving his own life and the animal's too. For the biggest king cobra, a giant orang-utan, an Indian rhinoceros, or a man-eating tiger is utterly valueless to a zoo or a circus if it is dead.

Experience counts, too, in keeping the animal alive after it has been captured. It may seem strange to call Frank Buck a dietitian. But that's exactly what he is and he is an expert in matters of diet to the most finicky epicures in the world. He can't guess how to accustom a wild animal to the change from the food which it eats in its wild state over to "civilized fare." He has to know! The capture of some rare wild animal may represent a great outlay of money and time, plus the ever-present element of danger to the collector. But if, after the beast is captured, its captor doesn't know how to keep it healthy, both physically and mentally, the whole investment of time and money and the potential value of the animal when it is delivered to the zoo or circus may be an entire loss.

Typical of some of the dietetic problems which Frank Buck has had to solve was the case of Baby Boo, the two-foot-ten-inch elephant which he brought back on one of his trips. So far as is known there has never been written any book on "The Care and Feeding of Infant Elephants." So when Frank Buck bought one from a party of Batiks in Sumatra and it was delivered to him in a half-starved, weak and wobbling condition there were no precedents for him to go by in determining what to do to keep from having a dead baby elephant on his hands. Here is what happened, as he tells it:

"My problem had just begun. I had to get some food into that elephant's belly—and without much loss of time. I sent Ali (his native assistant) out to scout around for a milk-goat. He brought one back and hurriedly milked it. I tried to pour some milk down the stubborn pachyderm's throat but I couldn't get her jaws open. Once or twice I managed to get them partly open but before I could pour the milk down she closed them again.

"I considered five or six different plans for feeding that animal, dismissing them as impractical as fast as they popped into my head. Then I got an idea that I thought was worth trying. The first step was to send Ali to a nearby clump to cut me a length of bamboo. As is commonly known, a stick of bamboo is made up of a series of joints, the wood being hollow between joints. All brought back exactly what I had sent him for, a piece of bamboo about two inches in diameter. I cut off a piece about nine inches long, leaving the joint to form the bottom. This gave me a device which I planned to use as a feeding tube. I sharpened the opening till it came to a point, and, satisfied that I was on the right track, I proceeded with the next step.

"Before this could be carried out we had to get our elephant (we practically carried her) to the shack where we had arranged to spend the night. I instructed Ali to hold some rice in water. When the rice was cooked, I mixed some goat's milk with it, the result being a thin but nutritious gruel. Then I proceeded to fill my bamboo with this substance.

"This done, Ali got his shoulder right under the elephant's forequarters till she was almost standing on her back legs. Then I forced the point of the bamboo tube between her tightly closed jaws, gradually working it in until I could tip it up and dump the contents down her throat. Stubborn to the last, she tried to keep from swallowing, giving in after a few seconds of gurgling. A second tubeful was prepared and the operation was repeated, this time the task proving less difficult. In all, I fed her three tubes of gruel that session.

"An hour later I put the obstinate little girl to bed, covering her up with some old gunny sacks. The following morning there was a definite improvement in her condition, some of the wobbliness having disappeared. We gave her her breakfast, repeating the performance with the tube. This time it was unnecessary to prop her up.

"A little later in the morning we put her on a bullock cart and took her back to Domji, from where she was transported, along with my other specimens to Singapore. We had no trouble feeding her en route, the bamboo feeding tube working perfectly."

One other item which a wild animal collector needs to have in his psychological equipment for following his profession is diplomacy. That Frank Buck has that is shown by the fact that some of his rarest specimens have been obtained because of his friendship with oriental potentates and his skill in handling the native peoples of the jungles where he has had to go to find his animals. Among these people Frank Buck is a great "tuan" (chief) and he is that to coolies in the Malay peninsula and to Indian rajahs. If he hadn't been he would never have been permitted to penetrate the forbidden jungles of Nepal, which is closed to white men, and bring back with him those two Indian rhinos which now have their homes in the New York and Philadelphia zoos.

If he hadn't been, it is doubtful if he would have been able to make the remarkable moving pictures which resulted from his last trip to the Orient. For it was a faithful coolie who came speeding to tell his "tuan" that a python was lying near a trail used by a tiger and that resulted in an epochal film record of a python-tiger fight, the like of which few white men have ever seen and none has ever before photographed.

For to cap his career of "bringing 'em back alive" Frank Buck has lately brought back a movie record of life in the jungle, which is as unique as the record of his career as a collector of wild animals. He also has brought back the memory of one of his narrowest escapes from death—the memory of being stalked by a tiger, of tripping and falling backward when the big cat hurled itself at him and of looking up and seeing the striped belly of the animal passing over him. "Yes, it was a rather close call," said Frank Buck in telling me of this incident. "But—well, you see me here, don't you?"

THE MARCH KING

Many sincere tributes have been paid to the memory of John Philip Sousa, the great bandmaster and composer, who died suddenly on March 6, at Reading, Pa., at the age of 77. For more than forty years he had been the world's dominant figure in the realm of band music, and by common consent bore the title of "the march king."

Mr. Sousa came into national prominence as leader of the United States Marine Band from 1880 to 1892, during which time he began to compose the long list of military marches which are known and played throughout the civilized world. Since leaving the Marines to conduct his own band in 1892, his fame had steadily increased.

One striking characteristic of Mr. Sousa's career was his encouragement of native American musicians and composers. It is said that when he first took charge of the Marine Band there were only two American-born players in the organization. On a recent tour of his band every instrumentalist was a native American, and nearly one-half of them were college graduates.

The band has played many concerts in Europe and other parts of the world, and its music has been brought to millions by radio. Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," written more than thirty-five years ago, is still the most popular military march ever penned, and promises to remain so. Many of his other fine marches have achieved almost equal popularity.

In addition to his marches, Sousa composed several light opera scores and many miscellaneous pieces. As a bandmaster he was without a peer, and none disputed his towering supremacy. We shall not see his like again.

EASTER

Celebrated in commemoration of the resurrection of Christ, Easter is the oldest of all the festivals in the Christian calendar, even antedating Christmas as a day of special religious observance.

This fact arises because, it is said, Easter is really an outgrowth of the Jewish Passover, and its adaptation is explained by a church historian thus: "The first Christians, being derived from or intimately connected with the Jewish church, naturally continued to observe the Jewish festivals, though in a new spirit. The Passover, ennobled by the thought of Christ as the true Paschal lamb, continued to be celebrated and became the Christian Easter."

But differences arose over the exact day on which Easter should be observed, and controversies occurred among the various Christian groups. The present method of computing the date of Easter was adopted by the Council of Nice in the year 325, which decreed that Easter should be the first Sunday after the full moon following the vernal equinox. But even this decree failed to cause general acceptance of the date set until after the adoption of the Gregorian calendar, more than twelve centuries later. In fact, the Greek church did not accept this date until 1923, so that it is only within the past few years that the entire Christian world has celebrated Easter on the same day.

According to present usage, Easter can not occur earlier than March 22 or later than April 25. This year it falls on March 27, an unusually early date.

Some married men will disagree with Sir Richard Page, who says "human speech is still in a very primitive condition."

SAFETY RESTS WITH DRIVER

In commenting on the staggering number of deaths due to traffic accidents on some of the highways in Oregon, the Portland Oregonian makes the following very practical remarks: "The automobile is not the pleasing toy so many of us appear to consider it. Its terrific potentialities annually realized in this country are as dread as those of war."

"It is the human factor that makes motoring alike perilous—and safe—and the best of all commonplace rules is to watch the road."

"Drivers of motor vehicles whose speed limit on the highway is tentatively fixed at 45 miles an hour, but who may drive at a greater speed if prudence suggests it, have no time to view the landscape or turn their heads for a word with someone in the rear seat."

"We do not believe the traffic problem ever will be solved—that is to say, that ever we shall be quit of it. But relief lies as surely in public education as in law."

The constant increase in deaths and accidents from automobiles from 1927 to 1930, inclusive, based on the average loss cost per car, has forced the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters to make a marked increase in automobile liability rates in fourteen leading states. The insurance companies undoubtedly regret that such action is necessary, more than does the average car owner.

The car owner controls the situation, and insurance companies are practically helpless to do aught but pay the bills. If accident insurance continues as steadily upward for the next four years, automobile owners can blame no one but themselves for further increase in rates.

ROADS AND UNEMPLOYMENT

The primary object of emergency highway legislation is to relieve unemployment. Extreme claims have been put forward on both sides in an effort to prove the efficiency or utility of this kind of relief.

It now appears that the percentage of road funds spent which go to labor, and thus best serve the primary object, is largely determined by the kind of road built. Statistics of the United States Bureau of Public Roads show that in the case of high-type roads costing $21,700 per mile, labor receives 16.7 per cent of the total cost. If an appropriation of $100,000,000 were applied entirely to such roads, labor would receive $16,700,000—or a total of 4,760,000 labor days, at a wage of $3.50 per day. The appropriation would permit the construction of 4,600 miles of highway—about fifteen hundredths of one per cent of the total road mileage in the United States.

A comparison with the benefits received from farm-to-market road construction is interesting. These roads, of modern dustless, all-weather surfaces, cost from $1,200 to $5,000 per mile, and make use of existing gravel and macadam roads when available, or the sand-clay mixtures and gumbo soils found in certain states. Experience has shown that labor receives directly about 40 per cent of their cost. On the basis, therefore, of $3,500 per mile total cost, a $100,000,000 road appropriation would give $40,000,000 to labor, or 11,430,000 labor days, at $3.50 per day, and would provide 28,500 miles of road—over four times the mileage of high-type roads. It is true that in the case of the latter, labor receives other moneys for work done at mills and quarries—but this would be offset, in the case of the former, by labor at oil refineries and commercial gravel pits.

Consequently, farm to market road appropriations not only provide rural districts with a necessity of progress—good, year-round arteries of travel—but are the most valuable in offsetting unemployment and providing American families with a livelihood.

HIDDEN MONEY POPS OUT

"The Queen of the Hoarders" has stepped down off her throne, according to a news dispatch from Chicago. A woman went into a store there, took a fat roll of money from the deepest corner of her purse, counted out ninety-nine one dollar bills, and ordered a washing machine delivered to her home.

And all of the ninety-nine bills were the old-time big ones. So, if she was not the leader of the tin can-coffee pot-mantle clock "depositors" in this country, who was, or is?

The nation wide drive to bring money out of hiding is gaining force everywhere. Families are beginning to realize that hidden money does no one any good. If they can find means to economize by spending, it is wise and helpful to spend, because dollars put into circulation keep moving, and make conditions better wherever they go.

As fast as people come to realize that they help no one, not even themselves, by keeping their money to themselves, more and more of them will imitate this Chicago woman, put money into useful labor, time and money-savers like she did.

The percentage of divorces to marriages is increasing, but it can hardly go above 100 per cent.

A lot of drivers are so intent on letting their lights shine before men that they never use dimmers.

BRIAND, MAN OF PEACE

In the death of Aristide Briand, the great French statesman, the world has lost one of its most powerful advocates of peace. No man has contributed more to the cause of international amity and co-operation since the World War than he, although his far-reaching plans attained only partial success during his lifetime.

Briand was especially active in his efforts to promote a better feeling between France and Germany; he was an important factor in bringing about the Locarno treaties, and was co-author of the Kellogg-Briand pact. He dreamed of a United States of Europe, and while little progress has been made in the direction of such a union, in time his dream may possibly come true.

His record as a holder of public offices is remarkable in that he was eleven times premier, sixteen times foreign minister of the interior, thrice minister of justice, and twice minister of education. Such a record would only be possible, of course, in a country where cabinet changes occur so frequently as in France, about once a year on an average.

Briand narrowly missed the presidency of the republic in May of last year, much to his disappointment and to the regret of his many admirers throughout the world. But he carried on bravely as foreign minister until poor health forced his retirement a few weeks ago.

He died peacefully in coma after suffering a stroke of paralysis. Thus passed away in his 70th year one of the world's foremost statesmen, Aristide Briand, apostle of peace.

FARM GIRL CHAMPION

An outstanding champion is always interesting, and Miss Gertrude Heikes, winner of the national health championship from a field of 850,000 4-H Club rivals recently, is no exception. Her score, by the way, was 99.9 per cent, about as close to perfection as it is possible to get.

She first won the championship of Dakota county, then after four trials the state championship, and finally the highest national honors, the latter with the best percentage ever made by a contestant. Something of her formula for developing health and beauty is told by a recent writer.

Her diet included plenty of milk and fresh vegetables. She avoided cigarettes, tea, coffee, and other stimulants, and unusually late hours. To bed about 9 and up about 6 was her routine. She did her full share of housework and took outdoor exercise regularly. At the same time she maintained a high scholarship rating at school.

Regular bathing, cleansing cream for the face, but no fancy cosmetics, and constant attention to brushing of her hair and teeth and the care of her hands and nails were important factors in her beauty program.

Whether it might actually lead others to a championship or not, Miss Heikes has illustrated a formula for sane and clean living which might well be adopted by girls everywhere.

ORIGIN OF ICE CREAM

Attempts to trace the origin of ice cream have been generally inconclusive, the invention or discovery of this popular dish being attributed to various nations and periods. But ice cream, or something closely akin to it, has been traced as far back as the middle of the sixteenth century, when it was introduced into France from Italy.

By 1630, it is said, an enterprising Sicilian had established the Cafe Procope in Paris, where ice cream was the special delicacy. It became known in England and Germany much later, and was probably not introduced into America until about the time of the Revolution.

The first advertisement of ice cream appeared in New York, on June 8, 1786, but it was not served in Washington until nearly half a century later, when Mrs. Alexander Hamilton used it as a dessert at a dinner given for President Jackson. The wholesale ice cream business was originated by Jacob Fussell, of Baltimore, in 1851, and met immediate success.

In recent years the use of ice cream has been increasing with amazing rapidity, until its production has almost reached the proportions of a major industry, being nearly 350 million gallons yearly, or about three gallons per capita.

The increased consumption of ice cream is entirely desirable, as it is not only an aid to the dairy industry, but also is in the interest of better nutrition and consequently of good health.

ARSON WORSE THAN MURDER

Murder without the use of firearms is just a civil crime in Hungary, but arson is a capital offense.

So they court-martialed Arpad Tichy in Budapest and sentenced him to death on the gallows for burning down the house in which was the body of a notary public he had killed with an axe.

Tichy was hanged within two hours in Kobanya prison.—The Standard, Boston.

PROTECTING DOLLARS AT WORK

IN EVERY PART of California, Bank of America has dollars at work—in the form of loans to industry, agriculture, responsible individuals.

These loans are widely diversified in every sound major business activity of the state.

Never more than a small portion of our total deposits is loaned to any one industry, crop or section.

Thus, in a very real sense, the strength of California—its diversity of climate, crops, business—is an added safeguard for Bank of America's statewide loans.

And this Bank has unexcelled facilities to protect its dollars at work: banking offices in 243 communities, serving the entire state; intimate knowledge of local conditions; the resources of each branch reinforced by the resources of our entire organization.

COLMA MERCHANTS' TEAM DEFEATED BY SUNSET NINE

The Sunset Merchants defeated the Colma Merchants' baseball team last Sunday afternoon by a score of 9 to 5, at the Fleishacker diamond.

Hooper, left fielder for Colma, starred at the bat, getting two triples. Joe Hurley, third baseman for Sunset, starred on the field, making a nice catch of Crowe's line drive in the fifth inning, turning it into a triple play, stopping Colma's chances of tying the score. This was the first defeat for the Colma Merchants' baseball team in twelve starts.

Following is the box score:

WHAT HAS TRANSPIRED

Joe Barry, country youth in New York, ekes out a living as caretaker in a poor rooming house and accordion player in Louie Bertolini's restaurant. Lured by the open country, he spends a night in the fields, near Newburgh. Bertolini discharges him. Friendless and "broke," he is offered $10,000 by a man he knows only as "Martin" to impersonate a liquor runner facing arrest. It means the penitentiary, but Joe is desperate. He defers decision until the next night, and is given $1,000 "on account." Next day Joe deposits $800 in country banks, giving his name as Joseph Bradley. Outside a circus tent he sees an accordion and is tempted to play it. A girl, Sue Dayton, niece of the owner, who admires the music, urges him to join the circus, but Joe says he must first return to New York "on business." He has decided to refuse "Martin's" offer. In his room four men accost him. Bewildered, Joe sees the men, who are detectives, find large amounts of money, a machine gun, and two revolvers. Next day, under arrest, Joe is identified by men who had seen him the night before near Newburgh, when two prohibition agents were killed and robbed. Joe finds he is charged with their murder and robbery. He realizes "Martin's" object—to have him found guilty of the murders, executed, and the case closed. A man known as "Fullhouse," waiter at Bertolini's, hints Joe's case by his evidence. Joe keeps silent as to his previous day's doings, fearing to embarrass Sue Dayton. His cellmate, Hymie Fradke, gives Joe $20. Next day Fradke, having secured a revolver, "smokes it out" with prison guards, and is killed. In the confusion Joe escapes. Using the $20 Fradke had given him, he flees New York, draws some of the money he had deposited and finds the Dayton circus, looking upon it as a refuge.

CHAPTER V—Continued

It meant more hours of weakness and strength, at last it meant capitulation. There could be no harm in that; the damage had already been done. To talk to her again, to look upon her in the graceful beauty of silk and tulle, to stand with her by the little dressing tent where first he had met her; there must be no more than that. The throngs of the menagerie found Joe Barry before the cages. The instant Sue Dayton's act was over, he was out of his seat and hurrying for the marquee that he might round the tangled guy ropes of the big top, to her dressing tent.

As he approached her, she waved excitedly to him and then turned for a moment within the tent, to make her exit as hurriedly, a professional copy of sheet music in her hands.

"I wonder if you've heard it?" she asked, giving him the music. "It's just out; you'd think it was written especially for us, wouldn't you?"

"Gee!" Joe had looked at the title. "That's great, isn't it? 'Queen of the Sawdust Ring.'" He laughed. "That's you, all right," he said.

"Well, we'll play that it is," Sue agreed. "The music's real pretty. And you ought to hear the band play it! Queer; the orchestration and song came through the mail the day after we saw you. Uncle Dan and I said right away it would be just the thing. Bert Wilson, the band leader, you know, tried it out, and we started using it for the act yesterday. But of course, the real touch will be the solo when you play and sing it. Don't you like the words?"

Joe nodded as he read the chorus:

You're my shimmering dream of the sawdust ring,
You're the hit of life's show for me,
I wonder if you know the joy you'd bring.

If the queen of my heart you'd be,
Tinsel and spangle and fluttering tulle,
Queen of the sawdust ring,
You'll make me a king, the world to rule.

When you're queen of my diamond ring.

Joe pulled in his breath, deeply. "That sure was written for you," he said at last. "I'll bet somebody saw you in the ring and wrote that."

"Foolish!" the girl bantered. "But it does fit into the act, wonderfully. That's the line I like," she added, pointing. She was beside him now, the soft touch of her breast against his shoulder sending through him a strange, almost delicious sort of thrill. "That fifth line: 'Tinsel and spangle and fluttering tulle.' Isn't that pretty?"

"The music's nice there, too." Hastily he crossed to the chair and, raising the gleaming lorio, swung his head under the strap.

"Play the whole thing over," she said. Joe obeyed greedily. Everything else in life had momentarily faded except this, except the fact that he was with her, translating a Tin Pan Alley creation into a serenade that, in his mind at least, had been written just to describe the only circus girl who ever existed.

Tinsel and spangle and fluttering tulle, Queen of the sawdust ring,
You'll make me a king, the world to rule.

When you're queen of my diamond ring.

"That's a cracking good song," said a voice from the rear, and Joe turned to grin a greeting to Uncle Dan Dayton. "Well, boy, you were a day or two late, but it's all right. How do you like the song?"

"Oh gee!" Joe's smile finished the sentence. Uncle Dan stuffed his hands into the diagonal pockets of his riding breeches.

"Seem to be getting along pretty well with it. How about making the break tonight?"

"You mean—?"

"Sure. You can memorize it in that time, can't you? If it's rotten, we'll be gone tomorrow, anyway, and you've had a rehearsal."

"I—I don't know." A certain ugly tinge of grayness had made its appearance about Joe's lips. Realization had returned. Suddenly he wondered what these people would do if he should suddenly blurt forth the fact that he was a fugitive from a charge of murder. "I don't know about doing the act tonight," he said. "I'd planned to write a lot of letters and get sort of cleaned up on various things."

Uncle Dan laughed, and waved the objection aside.

"Just got stage fright, that's all," and at a call from a lot boss, moved away. "Be back in a minute."

Sue Dayton waited until her uncle had reached the big top.

"If those other things can wait," she said seriously, "I'd do us all a lot of good."

"We'd really just be putting on a rehearsal, wouldn't we?" asked Joe.

"Yes, that's it. Come on!" She caught his arm. "You can learn that song in no time. Why, you almost know it now!"

There was considerable activity about Slat's Beeton's trunk in Clown alley that night. Uncle Dan, as equestrian director, wandered in and out, carrying over his arm a Pierrot suit which he fitted to Joe Barry, yanked away from him, and grumbling, returned to the wardrobe woman for more alterations. Sue Dayton came to the outer edge of the side wall and called through, wanting to know if Joe needed the song to run over. Cathouse Green, menagerie superintendent and animal trainer, sat on a trunk, heavily absorbed with a cud of tobacco and thoughts of the value of a new act to the circus.

Joe—Joe Bradley, as they knew him—was being made ready for his entrance to the ring.

CHAPTER VI

It was best, Joe had figured. Somehow, lies had refused to come to his lips. It could not go on, he had told himself, it must not go on—tonight after the show, he must fade out of this longed-for life forever. A tortured brain had seized upon that, arguing, showing reasons, prompting him to believe that he was doing a service by remaining, just for tonight. This was just a try-out, as Sue had said, just a demonstration, to see how an idea would work. After that, it wouldn't make any difference who played and sang to her, so far as the circus was concerned. And if he could only make it successful, and point the way, to what Sue and Uncle Dan wanted, that would be something to carry away with him when, after the show was loaded, he faded into the night.

A half-hour passed. A groom stuck his head under the side wall.

"The perch act's on. That new clown ready? Got the horses at the back door."

Uncle Dan moved forward to help Joe button the neck of his Pierrot suit. Some one handed him the gleaming lorio with its silverstone brilliance and facile keys. Over his shoulder went the strap—he swung his head and sang a bar or so of the tune that occupied his brain. Then he ran to the pad room entrance and the sight of her, perched atop the back of a ring horse.

Some Trees Young at 50

Leaves of some trees turn red in autumn, as those of many maples and sumachs; the leaves of other trees, as the ash and tulip tree, turn yellow. Some trees have leaves so large that you could wrap one about you like a robe, says "Forest Facts for Schools." Others have leaves hardly larger than your little finger nail. Some trees have wood so soft you can tear it apart in your hands and so light that it floats like cork; others have wood so hard no nail can pierce it and so heavy, it sinks in water like a stone. In age, too, trees differ tremendously. Some, like the aspens, are old trees when they have reached forty or fifty years, while others at that age are youngsters just getting a start.

Child's Play Gives Rhythm

Play is of as much or more value in teaching a child co-ordination than work, according to the children's bureau of the Department of Labor.

One of the most important results of play, the bureau points out, is the training of the child's senses and muscles. For instance, when a little girl is jumping rope to the sound of her own singing, or that of her playmates, she is learning to co-ordinate eyes, ears, and muscles. The perfect rhythm involved is itself the result of earlier muscle and sense training and the child who has played with vigor and freedom attains it without conscious effort.

STORY FOR BEDTIME

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

IT WAS very hard for Peter Rabbit to believe what Jerry Muskrat had told him about the harmlessness of Plunger the Osprey, better known as Plunger the Fish Hawk. Peter wouldn't have believed it if he hadn't seen for himself how Jerry had no fear whatever of Plunger. You see, it was very, very hard indeed to believe that there could be any member of the Hawk family, at least any large member like Plunger, who was not to be feared by all of the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest. But Peter remembered the mistake that had been made in regard to Ol' Mistah Buzzard, how for a long time he had been needlessly feared, and this made it a little easier to think that possibly Jerry Muskrat might be right in regard to Plunger the Fish Hawk.

Of course, Peter hurried to tell Danny Meadow Mouse and all his other friends what he had learned at the Smiling Pool. Each was as doubtful as Peter had been, but each hoped that it was true. After this they all watched Plunger whenever they had a chance, and not once did anyone see him try to catch any of the little meadow and forest people. In fact, he never seemed to notice them at all. He always flew straight from the Green Forest across the Green Meadows to the Big River and back. Often when he was returning from the Big River they would see something shining in his great claws. It was a fish.

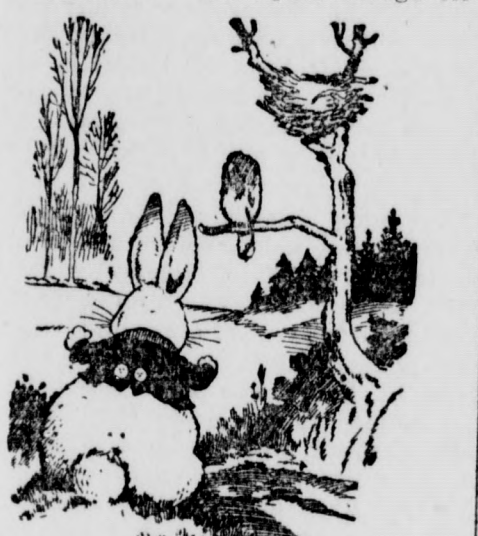

So it came about that after a while no one feared Plunger the Fish Hawk save the fish in the Smiling Pool and the Big River. Presently, from where no one knew, appeared Mrs. Plunger, and it soon became very clear that they had decided to make their home in the Green Forest. They made no secret about it. They didn't seem to care who knew where it was. Peter saw them carrying sticks and once or twice flying from the Big River with water weeds. Peter knew what that meant. It meant that they were building a nest. Right away Peter's curiosity got the best of him. He wanted to see that nest. He wondered if it was like Redtail's. The first chance he got he went over to see. He had watched Plunger and Mrs. Plunger so often that he knew just about where to look for their nest.

He found it quite as easily as he had expected to, for it was only a little way in from the edge of the Green Forest, beside the Laughing Brook as it makes its laughing way to the Smiling Pool. It was in a partly dead tree, a mass of sticks, and weeds and dead rushes, not at all neat. Indeed, Peter thought it was a very clumsy affair, though he didn't say so when Plunger spied him and asked him what he thought of their new home. Peter was very polite.

"I think it is quite an affair," said he. "It isn't as big as I had thought it might be, but I don't doubt it is very comfortable."

"This is only the beginning," chuckled Plunger. "It is good enough for

"I Think It Is Quite an Affair," Said He.

this year, but next year we will make it bigger, and the year after that we will make it still bigger."

Peter opened his eyes wide. "Oh, you mean that you will use this same nest year after year?" he asked.

"Certainly," replied Plunger. "Why not?"

"I don't know any reason why you shouldn't," confessed Peter. "I've always wondered why most birds seem to prefer a new house every year. I never could see why an old house, repaired if necessary, isn't just as good as a new one."

"It is better when it is treated as we treat it," declared Plunger. "We just make it bigger and more comfortable each year. You see, Mrs. Plunger and I are great lovers of home. Where do you live?"

"Over in the dear Old Brier Patch," replied Peter.

"Ever intend to move?" asked Plunger.

"Certainly not!" replied Peter. "It is the best place in all the Great World."

Plunger chuckled. "You've got the right idea, Peter Rabbit," said he. "Mrs. Plunger and I feel the same way about our home. We've found a place we like and we have begun house-keeping in a small way. As long as no one bothers us we'll keep right on living here year after year and making our home bigger and better. Can you guess why?"

"Why?" asked Peter.

"Because it is home, and in all the Great World there is no place like home," replied Plunger.

APPETIZING DISHES

THE French masters of the culinary art have applied their skill to all the simple foods with results that delight the epicure. These may help the housewife to introduce variety into her menu, using just the everyday things.

Scrambled Eggs Taruffs.

Simmer two cupfuls of canned tomatoes to which two teaspoonfuls of sugar has been added. Fry a slice of onion in four tablespoonfuls of butter. Remove the onion, season the tomatoes with salt and pepper, and add six eggs lightly beaten. Cook until the eggs are creamy.

Omelette Pont Neuf.

Beat separately the yolks and whites of three eggs, add three tablespoonfuls of milk, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla, one tablespoonful of powdered sugar and a little salt. Put one-half tablespoonful of butter in an omelette pan and when melted pour in the mixture; cook, fold and serve on a hot platter.

Roquefort Dressing.

This is a delightful departure from the ordinary and is delicious on firm head lettuce, quartered or cut into eighths. Mix six tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, a dash of cayenne and sugar and one-fourth cupful of crumbled Roquefort cheese. Beat until smooth. Chill and serve.

Spicy Salad Dressing.

Mix together one-half cupful of vinegar (get the grapefruit vinegar if possible), add two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, one-half cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, a dash of paprika, one teaspoonful of minced onion, two tablespoonfuls of minced celery and two tablespoonfuls of minced sweet pepper. Chill for several hours, then beat thoroughly and serve with lettuce in a bowl that has been rubbed with a clove of garlic.

HILLS AND VALLEYS

By Douglas Malloch.

THE world is hills and valleys, and plains.

There's sorrow and rejoicing, our losses and our gains.

I never knew a country that didn't have the two—

A little bit of valley you had to travel through.

But now and then a mountain that you could climb and see

The river far below you, up where you want to be.

I never knew a lifetime that hadn't joy and care,

But had its hills and valley, about an even share.

The shadows in the valleys, I've walked 'em like the rest,

But I have seen the mountains, the mountains at their best.

The sun was on the summits, the stars were bright and clear,

And earth was far below me, and heaven almost here.

The time she said she loved me I stood upon the height,

The time she up and left me I walked the valleys of night.

I know I'll never journey as high as that again,

Or walk the sort of valley I had to travel then.

And so I have my sorrow, but sometimes I rejoice;

I'm up upon a mountain, and then I hear her voice.

There's gladness on the hilltop, there's sorrow down below.

For life is hills and valleys, and women make it so.

But sometimes I imagine, and lots of times I pray,

She yet will come returnin', the way she went away.

And I shall take her to me, forget about the past,

And we shall live forever among the hills, at last.

RACING AT TANFORAN ATTRACTS BREEDERS

Racing at Tanforan and Del Monte has prompted a score or more of men of affairs to go into the breeding of thoroughbreds in order to have their own produce to carry their silks out on the racing strips. Some of the group, while awaiting the coming of age of the home-breds get quite a bit of fun from campaigning horses from other nurseries.

Aiden Roark is bringing a string owned by Henry P. Russell to Tanforan for the meeting to begin on Thursday, March 31. Russell has a nursery below Monterey with Wildair and fashionably bred brood mares as nucleus of a worth while haras.

Wildair was of Man o'War's year and was a good winner. Since his retirement he has achieved wide fame as a progenitor. He is one of six living stallions in America that have sired two or more winners of $100,000. His sons Canter and Sir Harry brought him into the famous list.

The Whitney bred horse is having his first season at the Russell ranch this spring and as was to be expected, other owners were quick to take advantage of the chance of sending matrons to his court. As many as ten "outside" mares have been mated with Wildair.

Rip Rap, similarly to Wildair, a son of the noted Broomstick, is having some opportunities in the breeding paddock at the nursery of Theodore Horning in Contra Costa county. The first foals of the young stallion have just arrived and have made a very favorable impression on discriminating critics. Encouraged by the sturdy appearance of the babies, owners sent their mares right back this season to the Horning stockhorse.

Rip Rap had a varied career. As a three year old he was held to be of sufficient quality to become favorite for the Kentucky Derby. He went amiss in training, however, and somewhat later passed from Sandy McNaughton to C. B. Irwin in exchange for a jockey's contract. When Horning acquired the chestnut, he retired him to the stud.

With more range than his full brother War Light, which was second to De Swasey in the first running of the Pacific Coast Breeders Association Handicap, hopes are strong that the three year old War Glow, owned by Albert Joseph, will do a bit of fast running at the Tanforan session. The War Cry colt is in the Horning establishment and is back in training after a lay-off.

MOLDERS' AGENT INDORSES BODIEN

Mr. A. Bodien, 28 Rice Street, Daly City, California. Dear Sir and Brother:

It is gratifying to know you are again a candidate for re-election to the office of Councilman of Daly City. While you have been Councilman of Daly City you have proven to be an honorable, capable and energetic official. You have served your city conscientiously and have at all times striven for the advancement of your community and its citizens. Your long experience and thorough knowledge of the affairs of your city, coupled with your ability and sterling qualities, eminently qualify you to successfully deal with the many problems that confront an official in your position.

Sometimes public officials are inclined to neglect the interests and welfare of the wage-earners. Not so with you. You possess an intimate knowledge of the problems of those who toil and you have always zealously guarded their interests. As an evidence of your work in this direction, Daly City has ordinances whereby the union scale of wages must be paid on all contracts for work awarded by the city.

I have had occasion to take up matters with you in which members of the Molders' Union were interested. On every occasion I found you anxious to do everything in your power and, moreover, you displayed marked ability and the matters were always satisfactorily taken care of.

Knowing as I do of your integrity and ability and of your unselfish desire to serve you city and its citizens I am deeply interested in your candidacy and sincerely wish you success.

Cordially yours,
FRANK BROWN,
Business Agent Molders' Union No. 164.

PEAK NAMED FOR POETESS

SIDELIGHTS

Here is a timely story about hoarding. Thomas Barnett, 78, of Washington buried his money in his back yard. Someone dug up and got away with a milk bottle containing $17,000, but another $11,000 was saved because the diggers didn't happen to find the can and jar in which it was hidden.

Another tradition goes bloomy. For centuries the dove has been hailed as the emblem of peace, but now comes Dr. Funkhouser, professor of zoology at the University of Kentucky, to declare that in their domestic life doves are among the most quarrelsome of birds.

The American stage has lost one of its brightest stars in the death of Minnie Maddern Fiske. Mrs. Fiske was born in New Orleans 67 years ago and first appeared on the stage at the age of 3; at 12 she was alternating in leading roles and old women's parts; at 15 she became a star. Her last appearance was in Chicago a few months ago, when illness forced her to cancel her engagement. She was given the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws by the University of Wisconsin in 1927.

Senator Borah didn't get to first base with his proposal to reduce salaries of the cabinet and members of Congress. Neither did his plan to reduce the 20 cents a mile allowed Congressmen for traveling expenses receive any enthusiastic support, although he pointed out that while he was allowed $1,068 for a round trip between his Idaho home and Washington it really cost him about $350. The difference, of course, represents "honest graft."

CALIFORNIA LEADS STATES IN MOTOR REGISTRATION

Figures showing that California leads all the states of the nation in per capita registration of motor vehicles have been made public by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The figures show California has one motor vehicle for every 2.8 persons.

Registrar Russell Bevans estimated this would be enough cars to take the combined populations of California, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Idaho, Wyoming and Montana riding at one time by putting an average of five persons to the car.

Only the District of Columbia equalled California's per capita. Nevada, California's sister state, was the next highest with a per capita of one car to 2.9 persons.

The importance of the automobile in the life of the Californian was stressed by Bevans by comparison with Alabama's per capita of 10.8, and Mississippi's per capita of 11.6.

The populous state of New York has one car for every 5.5 persons, while Illinois has one car for every 4.8 persons.

The national per capita is one car for every 4.75 persons.

LIGHT WILL DISCOURAGE BURGLARS AT TRIVIAL COST

Who wouldn't pay a fraction of a cent a night to avoid being robbed? Such inexpensive protection may be had simply by leaving a light or two burning when you're out. Burglars—and they're numerous now—very seldom take the chance of breaking into a lighted home or shop, whereas a place that's dark invites them. So, whether you carry burglar insurance or not, keep a room or two lighted and save yourself worry about intruders. You will hardly notice the difference in your electric bill.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla. J. David Stern, publisher of the Philadelphia Record, says:

"When you say that the sun rises, you don't mean it, because you know that the sun doesn't rise but that you dip down on the revolving earth toward the sun. It is a habit of mind to think of ourselves as the center of the universe."

"And just so it is the habit of mind to think of our dollar as a fixed quantity. Just as we talk about the sun rising, we talk about values going down when, in truth, the value of the commodity remains constant while the value of the dollar is increasing."

"Professor Irving Fischer tells of his experience in Germany some ten years ago, when the mark was going rapidly to nothing. The Germans did not think of it that way; they talked about prices going up. The mark was still the mark even when a loaf of bread was priced at a million."

"We have the antithesis of this in America today. Dollar credits are shrinking; therefore dollars are becoming more valuable. The higher the dollar goes, the lower prices go."

"In addition to the confusion that this causes, it has a depressing effect on the minds of the people. They have the impression that the value of their real estate, stocks, and bonds are shrinking, whereas, if they could they would see that in many instances the only change is in the value of the dollar."

"Have you ever been seated in a stationary railroad coach opposite another coach which is standing still? The other coach begins to move, but you have the impression that your coach is moving, the other one standing still. It is only when you catch sight of some fixed object, such as a post in the station, that you can tell which train is moving."

"Unfortunately, in the present financial situation, there is no fixed measure by which we can judge whether commodity values are moving down or the dollar value is moving up. If we could only see the present financial situation as merely a currency stringency, the average citizen would not be so much depressed—business would be better."

The forbearance of the two players may be judged by the fact that there were no casualties and no threats of divorce proceedings during the progress of the game.

BLOSSOMS, FLOWERS ADORN COUNTRYSIDE

Thousands of acres of orchards in bloom and miles of fields decked with wildflowers now lend a new attraction to motoring in California. Reports received by the touring bureau of the California State Automobile Association from all parts of the state indicate that the seasonal display of blossoms and wildflowers is at its best or approaching its peak. The colorful spectacle is expected to attain a climax of profusion and variety this week.

Wildflower and blossom festivals are taking a place on the calendar and thousands of motorists are making trips into the countryside to enjoy the beauty offered by blooming fields and orchards.

In the Santa Clara Valley fruit blossoms are well out and with favorable weather the annual blossom festival at Saratoga on Saturday, March 26, promises to attract a record throng.

In the Napa area peach, cherry, and plum trees are in full bloom. Along Putah Creek between Monticello and Winters and also from Knoxville north red buds are blooming. Wildflowers are now abundant all through the Napa Valley.

Blossoming almond and plum trees are found in the Stockton district, notably along Cherokee Lane, Waterloo Road, and Linden Road. Later will come the apricot and peach blossoms.

Through the southern end of Lake County orchards are coming into bloom.

Continuance of warm weather will bring the blossoms in the Santa Rosa region and throughout Sonoma county into full bloom.

In the great peach growing area around Chico the blossoms are at their best.

JOINT CONVENTION ON TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

Prompted by the increase in traffic deaths and injuries last year, a joint convention to discuss the problem will be held by the California Committee on Public Safety and the Municipal Traffic League of California at Santa Cruz, May 5 to 7. These groups have heretofore held their own separate annual conventions. The leaders of the organizations have decided to meet jointly this year for the purpose of determining what measures can be taken to improve the traffic accident situation.

Senator Arthur H. Breed of Oakland, president pro tem of the State Senate and a director of the California State Automobile Association, is chairman of the committee on public safety. Charles F. Todd, a former supervisor of San Francisco, is president of the Traffic League.

The Santa Cruz gathering will bring together leading officials and traffic experts from all parts of the state. The two organizations consist of state, county and municipal officials and representatives of organized motorists and other groups concerned with the traffic problem.

In 1931 the number of persons injured in traffic accidents in California was 48,077. Many were maimed for life, and 2,591 deaths resulted. This was an increase of 16.6 per cent over 1930 in the number of injured, and an increase of 8.7 per cent in fatalities. The increase in accidents was 12.9 per cent.

Station Sergeant: "Are you married?"

Prisoner: "No, sir."
Officer: "He's a liar, Sergeant. When we searched him we found in his pockets a clipped recipe for curing croup, a sample of silk, and two unposted letters in a woman's handwriting a week old."—Bennington Banner.

VOLUME 4 FRIDAY, MARCH 25, 1932 NUMBER 35
Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.
"Well, Sambo," said a judge, "so you and your wife have been fighting. Liquor, I suppose?"
"No, sah," replied Sambo; "she licked me this time."
Nurse: "Well, Oswald, do you want to see the new brother the stork brought?"
Oswald: "Rats on that chestnut. I want to see the stork."
Professor: "This essay on 'Our Dog' is, word for word, the same as your brother's."
Freshman: "Yes, professor, you see, it's the same dog."
The nearer we approach the horseless age, the greater is our horse-power.
In a court room the other day the judge was reproving a colored man for deserting his wife, and dwelt at length on the injustice he was doing.
"Wife desertion is something, Rastus, that I must deal with severely, I'm afraid, and I feel very strongly on this subject."
"But, Judge, you don't know 'at woman. I ain't no deserter; I'm a refugee."
For Score Cards for Whist Parties, call at this office.
Wrecked Motorist (opening his eyes): "I had the right of way, didn't I?"
Bystander: "Yeh, but the other fellow had a truck."
"What do you find the most difficult thing on the piano?"
"To pay the installments."
There is no safer place to put those savings, and no better return for your money than a home for the future.
Daughter: "He says he thinks I'm the nicest girl in town. Shall I ask him to call?"
"No, dear; let him keep on thinking so."
Aberdeen and American Block Coal that satisfies.
Well, let's hope the backbone of the depression is at least slightly dislocated.
